

Anastasia Timofeeva

After I came back from studying abroad in China, I transferred to Penn State to complete the engineering 3+2 program. I graduated from Bloomsburg in May 2018 with a BS in Physics and BA in Chinese and will be graduating from Penn State in May 2019 with a degree in Engineering Science. I've had a couple job interviews this month and one of them was for an engineering company that has offices in US and in Shanghai. I'm currently working on a research project sponsored by NASA designing a turbine, and I'll be defending my thesis on that in April of next year.

