What is ABLE?

ABLE, short for Academic Biology Learning Environment is a resource area in the Science and Health Science Living-Learning Community Room on the first floor in Columbia Residence Hall.

What is the purpose of ABLE? ABLE provides a place and resources for students in introductory biology courses to study individually and in groups together and with faculty.

What is available at ABLE?

Learning Resources: Bones and skeletons; biological models (hearts, kidneys, muscle, bones, brains, blood vessels, eyes, ears, etc); manipulatives for studying complex processes (protein synthesis, inheritance, cell division, etc.); charts and posters; computer software; and more!

Microscopes and slides from lab courses

Books and workbooks

Faculty: Faculty members of the Department of Biological and Allied Health Sciences will hold office hours at ABLE. See front page.

Tutoring: Will be provided by Graduate Assistants from the Department of Biological and Allied Health Sciences and members of the Tri Beta Honor Society

Computers: Two computers with anatomy and histology software are available. You can also use these computers to complete assignments on Mastering Biology, Mastering A&P, etc.

When is ABLE open? ABLE is open 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. on Monday through Thursday and 9:00am-3:00pm Friday.

Who Has Access to ABLE? ALL students enrolled in Principles in Biology I, Principles in Biology II, Anatomy & Physiology I and II. If enrolled in one of these courses you have ID card access to Columbia Hall and the ABLE center. If you have issues accessing the center please contact Dr. Hess at ahess2@commonwealthu.edu YOU DO NOT NEED TO LIVE IN COLUMBIA OR ON CAMPUS TO USE ABLE. PLEASE SIGN-IN WHEN USING ABLE RESOURCES.

ABLE is supported by a Bloomsburg University, TALE Center faculty grant.
